Master Of Surgery in Implant Dentistry

The "University Master of Surgery in Implant Dentistry" (MS) is a specialized program designed to enhance the theoretical knowledge and practical clinical experience of general dentists in the field of implantology. It equips them with the skills and confidence to select patients, diagnose conditions, perform treatments, and carry out implant procedures. The program provides a thorough understanding of the biological aspects of implantology and offers clinical training through practical trials, enabling dentists to safely perform surgeries and maintain patients with dental implants.

The Master's program adopts a blended learning approach, combining theoretical webinars with hands-on classroom practice. It caters to the scheduling constraints and work responsibilities of participants who may find it difficult to attend in-person classes. Live lessons are provided to recreate the dynamics of a real classroom experience, and all lectures are recorded for later review and further study. The program consists of five Master sessions in total. Upon completion of the program, graduates will have the ability to independently develop and implement treatment plans for patients in need of dental implant prostheses. The course culminates with a Master's thesis focused on implantology topics, which students prepare throughout the year and present at the end of the course.

English serves as the official language of the Master's program. It is categorized as a "SCIENCE" program due to its technical and scientific orientation.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY AND EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The modality of the Master is blended and it has a theoretical-practical approach aimed at providing a learning on the problems of the surgical and rehabilitation prosthetic phases supporting the implant.

The didactic calendar may be subject to change in relation to national and international scientific calendars and the availability of teaching staff. Upon activation of the Master (after the deadline for enrolment) the final schedule will be sent out. Any changes will be communicated by email.
